

Edward Teller retires from Livermore Laboratory

"It was clear to me at that time (September 1935) that the end of the world was approaching fast. Nothing could save us except a miracle — probably more than one miracle."

"But through efforts in many different fields, Hitler was defeated. These past 30 years have been the most peaceful in history."

"I believe the dangers we are now facing are less apparent and more insidious. I feel now as I did in 1935 — only a miracle can save us."

— Dr. Edward Teller, June 16, 1975

Dr. Edward Teller, one of the most important scientists of the 20th century, officially retired from the University of California system, and thus the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, at ceremonies yesterday in Livermore.

Teller, 67, will continue to have an office at the Lab, however, and continue to work on his scientific pursuits.

"I hope that people will still listen to me," he said, but the Hungarian-born student of Werner Heisenberg had no trouble dazzling an assembled group of reporters for an hour yesterday, sprinkling his discussion with anecdotes and stories.

Teller continually emphasized that young people today think science is "irrelevant" and repeated time and time again that more people should be involved in scientific research.

"We are running into a psychological opposition," Teller said "especially from young people."

He feels that the caliber of young scientists has declined to a "catastrophic degree" and blamed much of it on the attitude of Americans toward science in general. "What talented man will go into a field that is 'irrelevant'?" he asked. He did add, however, that "the very best people are motivated in a manner that cannot be changed", but he does see bad times ahead.

The death of Project Plowshare — which was concerned with peaceful applications of atomic power — disturbed him greatly. With the Soviet Union hard at work on a similar project, Teller commented "If this continues, they (the Soviet Union) within a short time, they (the Russians) will have the means to make a splash with the combined effect of Sputnik and the Aswan Dam."

Teller named only one specific project (of many, he felt) that could use nuclear power now, and that is another canal through Central America.

However, his wide-ranging mind is also engrossed in the problems of astrophysics, energy research and high energy physics.

Teller is most famous for his work on the hydrogen bomb, and indeed he has been called the Father of the Hydrogen Bomb.

Teller, however, respectfully declined the title. "I've never received a Father's Day card from the hydrogen bomb," he told the reporters and thus he felt no attachment to the honor.

Teller must retire his $44,000 position due to a UC regulation that requires any one reaching age 67 to resign at the end of the fiscal year. Teller turned 67 in January, but his concern is still with the future.

"We are faced with a catastrophe now," he said in reference to the energy crisis. "We are faced with disaster in the next ten years and we can't afford to worry about the next century, over which we will have no control."

"I agree with the aims of the environmentalists," he claimed and supported President Ford's veto of the strip mining bill, but he feels some environmentalists go too far in their concerns.

Teller came to the United States in 1935 after fleeing Nazi Europe and eventually became a physicist on the Manhattan Project during World War II.

He was director of the then Lawrence Radiation Laboratory from 1958 to 1960 and shepherded the Lab through a very delicate time in its history.

In 1956, he promised the Navy that the Lab could develop nuclear warheads small enough to be carried by missiles on a submarine, and the Polaris missile was the result.

Teller was the first chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards and perhaps not coincidentally was overjoyed about the recent deemphasis of the breeder reactor by the Ford Administration.

After the press conference, a program featuring Roger Batzel, the director at LLL; Dr. Marshall Rosenbluth of Princeton; Mrs. Randolph Hearst; Vice Admiral William Raborn of the Navy; Lieutenant General Alfred Starbird of the Army and Lieutenant General James Doolittle of the Air Force was held in Teller's honor.

Teller, however, is not ready to retire completely. "I'm afraid of the loss of freedom that people in this country take too much for granted," he said.

The problems facing the world and the United States must be solved — by a miracle if necessary — said Teller. "Without science, without technology, you cannot solve any of these problems," Teller maintained.

"I'm not talking environmentalists (objecting to scientific advances)," he said. "I'm not talking about politicians. I'm talking about everyone. We must find the talent and enthusiasm needed to go forward."

Fair today and Wednesday but patchy morning low clouds. High today 78 at Livermore. Night and morning low clouds in San Ramon Valley, otherwise fair. Low tonight in mid-50s. High both days low 70s to low 80s. Westerly wind to 25 miles per hour, decreasing at night.

Gigantic task begins

Venerable church moving to Mirador site

PLEASANTON — The first step has been taken in the gigantic task of physically moving the 100-year-old landmark on Neal Street to Mirador Drive in Pleasanton.

The congregation, approximately 300 strong, 259 including 33 absentee votes, "yes" and 34, including 15 absentee votes, "no," in favor of moving the United Presbyterian Community Church presently located at Neal and Second streets.

The Reverend Robert S.

Vogt was extremely pleased with the turnout Sunday morning to take part in the voting. According to Vogt "this was the largest voting record in the history of the church."

With this vote, the Building

Committee will shift into high gear and gather more information, draw up plans, set dates, gather bids, etc. When a firm estimate of cost is obtained, a plan for financing will be brought to another congregational meeting for discussion and decision. It is estimated this meeting will be held in early fall.

If it is necessary to borrow money to complete the plan, the entire report will be sent to the Trustees of the Presbytery of San Francisco for their consideration. Along with this, the committee will send a report to the Presbytery with a recommendation of concurrence or non-concurrence.

If the Presbytery gives its approval, the congregation is then free to go into a fund raising program and, if necessary, borrow the money needed to build and equip the buildings.

The final consideration will be the willingness of members to support the entire concept with their money. Several plans of "moral obligation" to support the project will be presented during the fall meeting.

During the in depth study on moving the building, at any point or by special call of the congregation, the entire matter can be reconsidered.

It is necessary for the congregation to go the Presbytery of San Francisco for their concurrence in that the church is a "connectional" church, that is, this congregation is tied to the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. As such, certain matters must be referred to the Presbytery.

If and when the white frame edifice on Neal is relocated, it would be the second such move for the building since its existence in the 1800's. In 1888, the church was moved from its original location which is the present site of Pleasanton Elementary School, and was used as a two-room school house before being converted to a church.

With the continued growth of the congregation, a Building Committee was formed several years ago and entered into an extensive study on building a new church which would have cost in the neighborhood of three million dollars. The congregation voted to proceed with the plans. However, because the economic response was not as anticipated, those plans had to be dropped.

During the annual meeting of 1975, the Building Committee was asked by the congregation to study the possibility of moving the church. Several study meetings were held to inform the congregation of the committee's findings and to discuss selling the Neal Street property following the move.

The total figure of approximately $105,000 which included the expense to raise or cut wire above the site along the route to the Mirador site by Pacific Telephone and P.G. and E.; physically move the Sanctuary and the social hall; construct full basements for both the Sanctuary and Social Hall and to create a perimeter road 12 feet wide around the entire lot, plus parking, was given to the congregation.

This $105,000 quoted figure could change with extensive study. More details will have to be worked out in regard to the safety of the building. At present, it is planned to move the Sanctuary in three sections. According to the Reverend Vogt, if there is any indication at all that harm would be caused to the building, plans for moving it would most likely be dropped.

Reverend Vogt does not anticipate too much turmoil in getting pledges from his congregation to pay for the church. "If there is any lack of interest in giving their financial support," he commented, "that too could interfere with moving the building." With the vote which was given on Sunday morning, Rev. Vogt feels that was a "solid commitment" from the congregation.

"We really never received strong objections," he said. "Most of the objections came in the form of questions which we had already considered before presenting the report to the congregation."

Committee members, which include some of the original members plus others, are: Howard Neeley, Bob Philcox, Fred Waltz, Betty Fuller, Bob Malcom, Dave Bagley, Jim Hagaman, Bob Stuart, Dick Howard, Mel Jennings and Leonard Marks. Howard had been serving as chairman of the committee, however, the committee will meet shortly to re-organize and start their in-depth study.

Shadow Cliffs reopens

PLEASANTON — The long, hot summer may become bearable after today when Shadow Cliffs Park officially reopens five weeks to the day after its unscheduled, early summer shutdown.

Alameda County Health Department officials called the park early Monday to pass on the good word from state health officials that last Monday's treatment with copper-sulfate had "done the trick" and eliminated the infected water snail population.

The park was closed May 13 following reported outbreaks of "swimmers' itch" caused by parasitic immature blood flukes released by water snails.

The snails contracted the cercariae from the feces of migrating fowl, according to state officials.

While the park "officially" opens today, rangers opened it to picnickers and sunbathers "who happened to drop by," Ranger Bob Lucas told The Times.

Swimming was not officially sanctioned, he continued, because lifeguards were busy readying facilities for today's expected onslaught of tired, hot humanity.

Last week's was the second treatment with copper-sulfate by state health department officials. The first spreading apparently didn't work because the large crystals supplied the department would not dissolve rapidly enough to reach a toxic level.

Officials spread 500-pounds of the fine, blue, powdery chemical from a flat-bottomed pram in last week's test, saturating weeds along the north and west banks adjacent to the beach area.

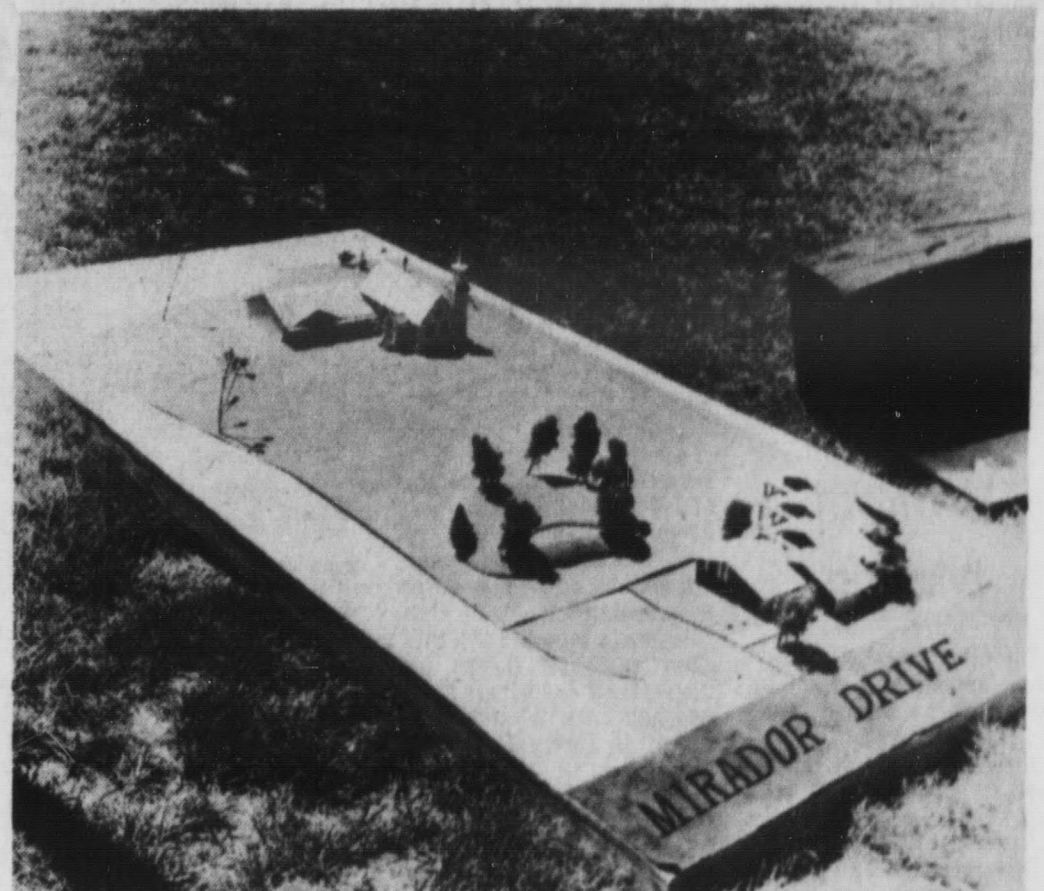

By forming a barrier some 100-feet beyond the diving raft, health officials hope to stave off any possibly infected snails from the lake's southern half.

Once released in the water the parasites seek a new host, pick people, but die immediately after penetrating the skin, leaving a painful, measles-like rash.

The phenomena crops up periodically, according to officials, when the snails, necessary intermediaries between birds and humans, increase in population.

The problem occurs in warm California waters, especially in ponds and in the Sierras.

County health officials told Lucas "everything is 'real good' now," he said, and the only thing missing was today's expected throng.

The proposed site of United Presbyterian Church of Pleasanton on Mirador Drive, Pleasanton. Educational buildings face Mirador Drive with amphitheater in back and then the site for the relocated and enlarged church. A perimeter road 12 feet wide will go around the entire lot. Additional parking also will be provided.

Inside of United Presbyterian Church presently located at 100 Neal Street which offers a seating capacity of less than 200 for a congregation of 804 members.

'Vandalism in Valley' speaker's topic

The summer swelter should prove ambitious months for Dublin merchants, talent and just plain folks, according to Chamber of Commerce spokeswoman Nancy Feeley, from this Wednesday's luncheon through Dublin Days at the Alameda County Fair, including the annual county-wide talent contest.

Capt. Dennis Jeffery of the Sheriff's Department will address the $3.75 luncheon at the Dublin Corral. His topic: vandalism in the Valley.

Jeffery is a new member of the chamber. Reservations should be made by Monday.

Discount tickets for the Fair are being offered at the chamber office, 7996 Amador Valley Blvd., through Jun. 20. Adult tickets, $1.50 at the gate, may be purchased in advance for $1. The 50-cent ticket for six through 15-year-olds is not discounted. Children less than six years old are admitted free.

Applications for the July 11 Dublin Day at the County Fair Talent Hour must be picked up before Jun. 20, Feeley said.

Any Dublin resident or student attending Dublin schools (including private music or dance schools) is eligible. Committee chairman Bill Foster told The Times.

Participants will be fielded in a junior division, those less than 14-years-old, or in the senior division, "from 15 to infinity," Foster said, adding "Competition is limited to amateur acts of eight people or less."

Auditions will be held at 1:30 p.m., June 30, in the Music Room of Dublin High School. Those auditioning must come "fully prepared to perform," Feeley said. "That means costumes and music."

Alameda County Fair officials will judge each community's talent presentation on the communities' particular day at the Fair. Finalists in the junior division will vie on Friday, July 11, and seniors on Saturday, July 12. County judges will award first place trophies in each division, Foster added.

Blackhawk hearing today

The Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors will hold a hearing today on the City council in executive session

PLEASANTON — The city council will meet in executive session at 5 p.m. today in the Civic Center Conference Room to discuss labor relations.

The PCEA contract expires June 30 and the firefighters' contract runs out July 31.

detachment of land so that the proposed Blackhawk development will have sewer services.

The 11 a.m. hearing — the meeting begins at 9 at Pine and Escobar in Martinez — concerns the removal of land from the East Bay Municipal Utilities District (EBMUD) and its transfer to the Contra Costa County Central Sanitation District (Central San).

Although environmentalists have protested Blackhawk every step of the way, this particular issue has been thrashed out in previous hearings and is not expected to produce many fireworks.

However, thwarted opponents of Blackhawk are now sponsoring a drive to get a ballot measure on in November that would allow voters to determine the extent of development on the slopes of Mt. Diablo.

The Friends of Mt. Diablo who are seeking to get the issue on the ballot will have only 30 days after the supervisors approve the Blackhawk project to gather 20,400 valid signatures.

The motto of the new organization is "Mt. Diablo is Everyone's Mountain". Volunteers will go throughout the county collecting signatures over the next few weeks.

bulbs for lower ones, except where you read or work. Also, you get more illumination by keeping light bulbs and glass lighting fixtures dust-free.

Incidentally, when buying light bulbs, read the package carefully. Lighting power is measured in lumens, not wattage. You'll find that a 100-watt bulb gives you more light—or lumens—than four 25-watt bulbs.

Also, fluorescent lighting gives you more light, more economically—watt for watt—than incandescent lighting.

Fluorescent bulbs can actually last up to 6 times longer.

And if you're decorating, remember that light-colored walls reflect more light than dark ones, making all types of lights more effective.

And don't forget to shut off lights when you're not using them. It's the simplest way to conserve on lighting.

Save energy—you'll save money, too.

Since we have to use enormous amounts of electricity to light night ball games, concerts and other events, rising electric rates threatened to knock our electric bill out of sight.

So to stay within our budget, we cut back on lighting wherever possible. We reduced parking and decorative lighting to a minimum. And we cut one-third of our interior hallway lighting. Altogether, we were able to cut our average monthly electric usage by about a third over the past two years, saving enough last year alone to light 4 night baseball games free.

Here are ways you can save on lighting in your home:

Budget verdict set for Thursday

Decision due on valley billboards today

Alameda County Bureau Continued public hearings on the proposed 1975-76 budget and the resolution of a trio of Livermore Amador Valley billboard matters are on tap for the Alameda County Board of Supervisors today in Oakland.

The supervisors will make their final decisions Thursday on the $329 million county budget that includes a 12 cent boost to the property tax rate.

Today, however, they will merely take testimony on court police, and welfare matters.

County Administrator Loren Enoch has divided the items for the supervisors' attention between "policy" and "issue" matters. "Policy" budget items have been included by Enoch in the proposed budget while "issue" matters have been left out.

Naturally, the issue matters draw a lot more comment from the departments and people involved than the policy matters.

Three issue items are set at 11 a.m., including a request from the district attorney for three staff members to enforce the Political Reform Act (Proposition 9).

The district attorney feels $53,373 for the positions will be necessary but Enoch counters by stating the workload involved in enforcement is unknown at this time.

Also, the district attorney would like to continue a previously federally-funded police legal training program which will cost $42,000 as well as spend over $90,000 on policy matters.

The Alameda County Superior Court is asking for $13,689 for a calendar coordinator which Enoch has said is not necessary since it duplicates activities of present positions.

At 11:30 a.m., the probation department will make its plea for an additional probation officer ($16,416) and full year funding of two community-based programs whose federal funds are expiring ($46,343).

Enoch and the department are in agreement that a $465,428 court diversion drug treatment program be continued and the supervisors will null that item as well.

At 2:30 p.m., the sheriff's department will request $102,000 to continue a work furlough/job placement program operating out of Santa Rita which Enoch has not included in the budget.

Also, expansion of visiting hours at Santa Rita and the courthouse jail and standby pay will be discussed, although Enoch and the department are in accord on the $150,000 necessary for both.

The final matters involve the welfare department and the big item is a $497,557 request by the family support division for 36 additional positions to intensify enforcement of child support and location of absent parents. The federal share of the program would amount to 75 per cent but Enoch put the matter at issue pending a chance for his office to study the staffing patterns more closely.

Over $3 million worth of welfare programs met with Enoch's approval, including a $1.7 million chunk to handle the expected slump in the economy that will boost welfare rolls and welfare department workloads.

Three valley billboards will (hopefully) face the scrutiny of the entire board this morning. At the June 5 meeting, the supervisors were split 2-2 with Joseph Bort absent on whether to allow the signs to remain standing or not.

Two of them are located along Stanley Boulevard and one is located on First Street near Las Positas Avenue.

The supervisors also will vote on whether to reconsider its position requiring 57 billboards in areas zoned for billboards to get a conditional use permit. All new billboards in those areas must get a conditional use permit, but the supervisors were split 2-2 on June 5 on whether signs that are already up should get such permits.

Summer classes available

LIVERMORE — Learn to make Greek dishes, unearth the mysteries of transactional analysis or discover how to repair your car! There are summer enrichment classes available designed to teach all those things and more, according to Barbara Kraybill, head of the Seventh Annual Summer Enrichment Program.

For a $10 donation per class, adults may sign up for a variety of courses. Bess Platt, a licensed family and marriage counselor, will explain transactional analysis, the popular psychological method, by lecture and practical application. "Graduates" of the course say their communication with family and friends has improved, thanks to what they've learned in the course.

Another popular course is "Galloping Gourmet." Students will visit six Livermore kitchens and expand their cooking repertoire with easy and elegant appetizers, Greek dishes, cooking that looks time-consuming but isn't, croissants and rolls, English pancakes and Scottish scones and Mexican cookery.

The class will run from June 19 to July 23, held in morning or afternoon.

New this year is Auto Mechanics for Women, taught by Russell Bearrows. The course will teach women how to change tires safely and do minor repairs. It will meet June 17 to July 1, 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. at 2250 Linden St.

Another practical course is the Small Appliance Repair class taught by John Creighton, who will show how to change cords, switches, explain how electric motors work and teach students how to remove motors from appliances and take them down to a repair shop, saving themselves the price of a service call.

Twelve courses in all are offered. Flyers describing them are on hand in Valley libraries. Further information and registration is available through Barbara Kraybill at 455-0617.

Irish odyssey-blood and bombs in Belfast

BELFAST - When you clatter down the long steps from plane to pavement at Belfast Airport, the first thing you notice is the four young soldiers, in rakish green berets and spotted camouflage.

Then you realize their rifles are pointing at YOU.

In case you were planning to object, behind the soldiers is a gray armored police van with a cyanide-blue light.

You might have liked to have taken a picture of the unnerving sight. But your camera, like all your hand baggage except for a small handbag, has been taken from you. You'll see it again in the guarded baggage claim area inside the airport.

They say things are quiet in Belfast now. "There were three assassinations last night," someone observed. "And two this morning. Of course, we don't even print the little stuff in the papers anymore, the five-pound bombs for example."

Driving away from the airport, your hostess takes you by a circuitous back road. "There's a shorter way," she observes, "but it goes through a troubled area." Next morning you learn a handsome 22-year-old was shot by a sniper, at about the time you would have been driving down that way.

The fortunate residents of Belfast's outskirts have mostly avoided direct physical risks — except, of course, if work or shop downtown, go to pubs, call attention to their political beliefs, or otherwise live in some normal fashion.

Probably every suburbanite has hair-raising stories to tell like the two occasions your hostess outran hijackers at gunpoint or the time her daughter Wendy, your longtime friend, walked into the middle of a gun battle during a lull.

Then there are the memories of going to sleep to the sound of machine-gun fire.

But it's the working-class families, trying to survive in streets half reduced to rubble, who have the real stories to tell. Sometimes there are two-story-high cyclone fences stretched across roads, separating Irish Catholic from English Protestant neighbor.

The fences were put up in 1969 to 1971, when "The Troubles" (as the Northern Irish call them) began, and the small children who use them to climb on now can't even remember a time when they didn't exist.

But the memories of their parents and grandparents are longer. In Europe, it's not unusual for a family to occupy the same neighborhood for generations. Old feuds are not easily forgotten and old violence is easily renewed.

The Irish still talk of the cruelty of Oliver Cromwell, the English general who subdued Northern Ireland and drove out many of the natives. Those who remain, hundreds of years later, say the English settlers who took over exploited their land and mistreated them.

Meanwhile, those of English extraction, and Protestants by birth, claim it would be economically impossible for Northern Ireland to be politically reunited with the south after so long. "They themselves don't even want that," said one.

Antagonism between the native Roman Catholics and the English Protestants (who have lived in Northern Ireland for so many generations, they must be considered natives themselves) seems to have been fed by a variety of political and personal experiences.

The bombings and murders of the past six years, culminating in occupation by British troops and suspension of self-government, are well known the world over.

What's hard to imagine is the constant strain of living in a state of siege. Morning: News of the latest victims, mostly young. "And now, for the sports."

Afternoon bus ride into town: The back of your little purple bus ticket says: "If you have information about MURDERS, EXPLOSIONS OR OTHER SERIOUS CRIMES - Ring Belfast 652155 In complete confidence."

Sometimes, your ticket will simply say: "JOIN AN IRISH REGIMENT."

The bus pulls into the center of town. You don't have to worry about the traffic here. No cars allowed. The only vehicles are the red double-decker buses. Plus green armored cars, boyish soldiers dangling their legs out the back (and holding their rifles ready.)

Lots of storefronts are vacant. Others have stern-looking iron grillwork protecting the big windows from bombs. When you step into a downtown store, a handbag and coat - pocket check is the rule. Nobody wants a bomb left behind in the wastebasket.

The side streets are often barricaded. At one end, you may enter after a handbag check and pat-down, and shop freely in any of the stores opening onto that street.

That's if you're not too rattled to do any shopping by this time.

Then there are the streets just outside the city center, where no empty cars are allowed. If you want to run into the bank, you invite along your friend to babysit with the car.

The reason? Terrorists have a habit of filling a car with hundreds (even thousands) of pounds of explosives, parking it somewhere, and blowing up both the car and the whole block.

They say the IRA (Irish Republican Army, the Catholic extremists) always telephone the police a warning so innocent bystanders can be evacuated.

The Protestants, it's said, have not been giving warnings lately.

Shopping trip done, you board the red bus again and ride through streets that look as if they're being razed for urban renewal. But the rubble is from bomb blasts.

In residential areas you notice a sturdy wire mesh across windows in front of the white lace curtains.

You see graffiti on brick walls about the UDA, UVF, IRA, UDR, Officials, Provos and IRSB - and find out that all those are warring military groups.

You pass Sandy Row, where inflammatory ultra-Protestant flags and lapel pins are on sale and children are practicing for the Orangemen parade coming up in July.

And Falls Road not far away where lapel pins have shamrocks and you hear the southern brogue.

It's a relief to get out to the quiet, upper-middle-class part of town where you're visiting.

"We won't be going out to Kelley's Pub tonight like we did the last time you were here," your hostess says regretfully. "They're always blowing up pubs, you know."

"By the way, think you'll be writing any newspaper articles about us?"

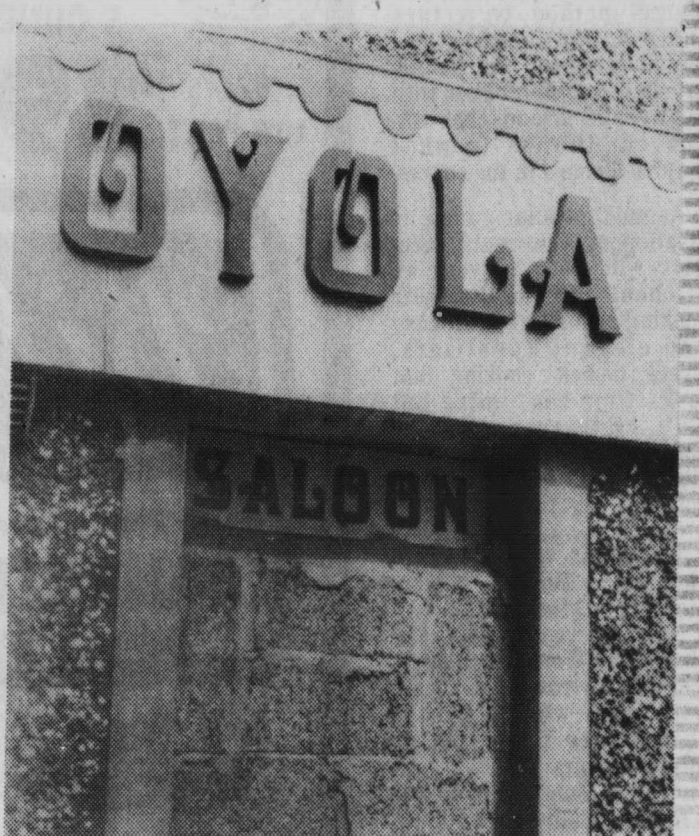

"Just to let the Americans know things aren't really so bad here anymore." — by Pat Kennedy

Inflammatory graffiti spouts Protestant slogans: "Ulster Still Stands Firm," "This We Will Maintain."

Adult summer school commences June 23

The Amador Valley Joint High School District's adult summer school will throw open the doors to 27 classes next Monday.

Summer classes are scheduled through Friday, August 1.

Classes are scheduled under six subject titles including academic and americanization, business education, family living and homemaking, fine arts and music, general interest and vocational.

Tuition is $4 per person per quarter. Adult education director Mike Connolly notes that further information on the classes may be had by calling 462-5500 during the day. In classes where instructional materials are provided or additional expenses are incurred by the school, a fee is charged. All fees are payable at the time of registration. Pottery is $5 and upholstery $3. Students must buy their own books and supplies. Registration fees and/or special fees will be refunded if the class is cancelled due to low enrollment.

Classes are set for either Amador Valley High School, Camp Parks, Pleasanton Convalescent Home or the Federal Youth Center.

The latter center will have a class entitled English as a second language on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 12:30 to 2:45 p.m. with Balaban as instructor. The other academic and americanization course is U.S. History I, Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room E-9 at Amador Valley High.

Six business education classes are set, including bookkeeping (Tuesdays 7-10 p.m., B-3, Amador), business machines and shorthand (Thursdays 7-10, B-3, Amador), MTST (Tuesday and Thursday 7-10, B-4, Amador), real estate (Tuesday and Thursday 7-10, E-8, Amador), speed writing (Tuesdays 7-10, B-1, Amador), and beginning and intermediate typing (Tuesday 7-10, B-2, Amador).

Three family living and homemaking classes are planned, including consumer homemaking (by arrangement, daily, at Komandorski). Persons wishing to enroll should call 846-4132 or 462-5500. The latter is the District Educational Center number. Parent-child observation, offered by Hill'n Dale

Cavie back again at Fair's 'Feather, Furs Pageant'

The County Fair in Pleasanton will again be featuring the "Cavie" in its poultry, pigeon and rabbit department this year, following success of these unusual animals last summer.

According to department head Jack Bulette, the Fair's "Pageant of Feathers and Furs" will be run in three separate phases. Rabbits will be shown for the first five days of the Fair, June 29 through July 3; poultry will be the main exhibit from July 4 to July 8 and Cavies and pigeons will be exhibited from July 9 through the close of the fair on July 13.

Cavies, a show of guinea pig, will be shown mostly by members of two organizations... Golden State Cavie Breeders Association of San Jose, and the Sacramento Cavie Breeders Association. Although Cavies have been a part of the Fair for the past few years, it was only last year that the Alameda County Fair included them for competition and premiums.

Nursery at Camp Parks, is set for Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 to 12:30 p.m. with Linda Ward in charge. Tailoring is being offered each Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m. in B-11 at Amador.

Nine fine arts and music classes are offered. Art appreciation (Monday, 10:45-11:45 a.m., Convalescent Home), band (Tuesday, 7-10 p.m., M-1, Amador), general crafts (Tuesday 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., Convalescent Home), guitar (Wednesdays 7-10 p.m., M-2, Amador), jewelry making (Tuesdays 7 to 10, B-16, Amador), oil painting (Thursdays 7-10, MP, Amador), pottery (Wednesdays 7-10, D-3, Amador), watercolors and acrylics (Wednesdays 9:30 to 12:30, 7-10, D-2, Amador).

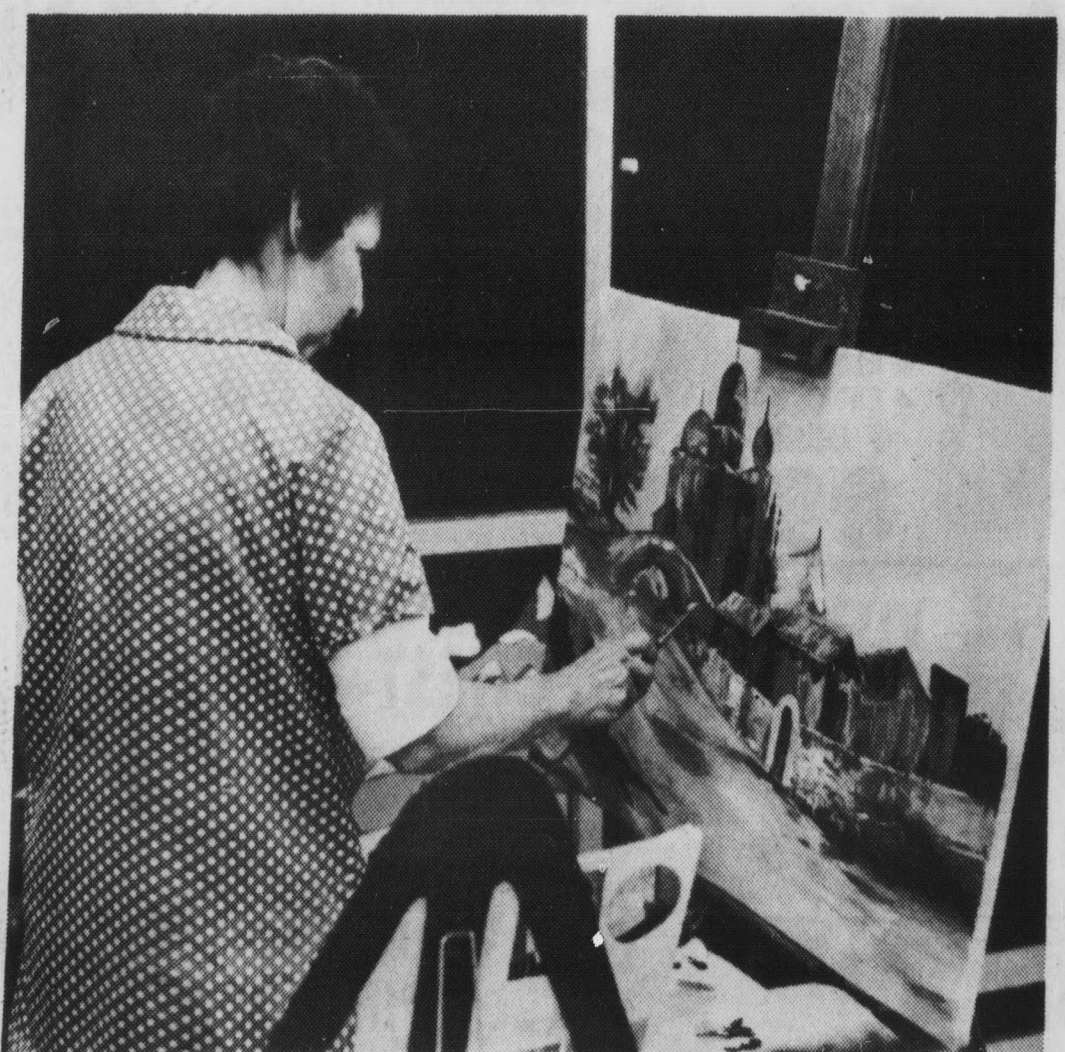

A general interest class in travel preparation will be held Wednesdays from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the Pleasanton Convalescent Home.

Six sections in upholstery are scheduled for Rooms 8 and 9 at Camp Parks. The day sessions are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, all 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. while the evening sessions are 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Baptista is the instructor.

SHAPING A BOWL... your very own bowl... is one of the incentives of taking the pottery class to be offered by Amador Valley Joint High School District's adult education summer session. Farsaci will instruct the class each Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room D-3 at Amador. Below, Bob Samuel utilizes skills in upholstery class.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Take one step to compromise with those you have dealings with today and you'll find they'll take two steps in return.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
The profit or return you're looking for today for your efforts may be slow in coming. Keep plugging.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Others today will be very favorably impressed by the way you handle yourself in several delicate situations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
The means will be available for those small creative changes to brighten things up a bit around the house.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Attending a gathering this afternoon? Take extra pains to look your best. You'll want someone there to notice you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your material prospects are especially good today. For some unusual reason you may not be fully aware of it. Be alert for hidden opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You're at your best today where your creativity is challenged. Put your imagination to profitable use.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
The next couple days you'll make real progress if you keep what you're doing to yourself. There will be time to talk later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
You're very good today at picking up partial ideas from others and tailoring them into something useful for yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Focus your attention completely at this time upon your most ambitious aims. You'll come up with an ingenious plan to advance your interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You'll do something thoughtful for a friend today and feel it wasn't fully appreciated. Later, you'll be repaid twofold.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
In any business involvements you have today don't jump at the first price offered. It's profitable to haggle a bit.

Your Birthday
June 17, 1975

There are some quite unexpected fun things in store for you this year. You'll form two new, lasting friendships. One of these persons you'll meet on a short trip.

Today's North hand is the same as yesterday's except that it has one more heart and one less diamond. It was held by Cy Dennen of Grand Rapids, Mich., playing in a recent tournament with Jim Jacoby.

In spite of his holding of only nine high-card points Cy wanted to show slam interest opposite Jim's spade opening. He did this by using a Jacoby gadget. His three-heart call followed by four spades guaranteed 10 cards in spades and hearts and a very

Enjoy car-free bike trails

For bicyclists who want to "get away from the tyranny of the automobile," the East Bay Regional Park district offers 22.6 miles of in-city parks or park areas.

The word from Jana Olson, trails coordinator, who says that the trails, entirely separated from motor vehicles, are laid out on gentle grades excellent for beginners and families with young children. The routes offer views of meadows, the Bay, lakes and cross-country vistas.

Here's the park-by-park rundown on the bike trails:

LAKE CHABOT TRAIL

This is a 3.6-mile trail, partially paved and partially gravelled, running from the end of Sylvan Circle in San Leandro, across East Bay Municipal District property and the crest of Chabot Dam, along the western edge of the lake to the marina and then along the south edge of the Lake. There's a snack stand at the marina and picnic tables along the route.

POINT PINOLE REGIONAL SHORELINE

This is a 2.2-mile trail starting at the parking lot on the Giant Highway, crossing open meadows and terminating at the Point.

From there, one can walk along the shoreline or picnic. Fire roads in the park can be utilized by bicyclists also. The park offers three and one-half miles of shoreline and spectacular vistas of the bay and Mt. Tamalpais.

NIMITZ WAY, TILDEN

AND WILDCAT CANYON REGIONAL PARKS

This is a 5.7-mile ridgetop trail offering dazzling view of the Bay, the Golden Gate, San Pablo Reservoir, the Carquinez Straits and intervening country. It starts at Inspiration Point in Tilden Park. About four miles of trail are paved; the balance is hard-packed dirt. Gustly winds are often encountered on this trail.

COYOTE HILLS REGIONAL PARK

This is a 3.1-mile loop trail around the hills offering interesting views of the south bay and the mouth of Alameda Creek. The trail is paved and starts along the park entrance road.

ALAMEDA CREEK TRAIL

This 12-mile trail winds along Alameda Creek to the mouth of Niles Canyon with vistas of distant Mission Peak and Southern Alameda County hill country. The western terminus is Coyote Hills Regional Park. There is a horseback trail on the opposite side of the creek. The trail is paved and there are underpasses at all road intersections.

Catholic Charities seeks sponsors for Viet refugees

Persons or groups interested in sponsoring the resettlement of Vietnamese refugees in the East Bay are being sought by Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Oakland, it was announced by Frank Mele, director of the new resettlement program.

To date, 16 sponsorships from Livermore, Oakland,

Berkeley, Alameda, Hayward, Union City, Concord, Danville and Antioch have been processed through Camp Pendleton to aid 40 refugees.

A sponsor is described as a "person or organization who agree to provide an individual refugee or family with food, clothing, shelter and employment until assimilated into the community and financially self-sustaining."

He said the commitment of sponsorship is a "moral and not a legal one."

Sponsors should assist refugees in making contact with the local office of Catholic Charities where they will be interviewed through an interpreter, if necessary, and aided further.

Sponsors should also acquaint refugees with facilities in the area and maintain regular contact to ensure adjustment to American lifestyles.

"We are beginning to make progress in placing and assisting Vietnamese refugees," said Mele, "and I am most grateful to individuals and organizations who have helped. But we need more sponsors to accommodate all the families who desire to settle in the Bay Area."

KQED auction nets $535,105

Pleasanton, 5-1, will face Covac of Livermore, which won twice Sunday. The Covacs are just a game behind in the standings at 4-1.

First Bank ran its record to 4-0 for a brief while Sunday when it defeated Danville, 4-2 in the double-header opener.

Rob Wicks stopped the losers on six hits, and held them scoreless until the sixth inning when Steve Jones cracked a two-run homer.

Bases loaded singles by Rich Hall and Ken Dalrymple jumped Pleasanton off to a 2-0 lead after an inning. Don Palmer made it 3-0 in the second with a single that scored Mike Johnson.

Hall accounted for the final run with a seventh-inning double that fetched Bob Koopman. Hall finished the game with three hits. Wicks struck out five in going the distance.

Payne and suffering

Mike Zampa

Rumors are flying that soccer coach Don Beatty of Chico State University will shortly become head coach of the San Antonio franchise in the North American Soccer League.

Beatty's flight from academia would be news here, because Chico has become a nesting ground for EBAL soccer players. Last season, Ed Meyer, Les Hord and Mike Payne, all of Livermore High, played for the school. Beatty is after more of their neighbors for next season. Dan Payne, Mark Bryant and Dan Pegan, have considered enrollment there.

Under Beatty, the school has become a West Coast power of sorts. It won the Far Western Conference championship last season, before losing to USF in the NCAA playoffs. The coach spent the off-season in pursuit of athletes who might propel Chico past the first round of the NCAA's next year.

One is a Bolivian companion to Chico's D.J. Harding, a mainstay on the Hornet team which has appeared here in past exhibitions. D.J.'s boyhood friend is fabled to be a 9.6 100-yard dash man who could win most track meets while dribbling a soccer ball.

Beatty's personality has been critical to his recruiting success, says Mike Payne, who surprisingly is one of the coach's most objective critics. While the Chico boss hasn't landed any Olympic sprinters yet, he has been solely responsible for selling the school.

"A lot of guys depend on coach Beatty," Payne says. "A lot of guys are playing just because of him. I don't know how it will hold together if he leaves."

Payne and Beatty were not close when Mike first arrived in Chico two years ago. Their concepts of the game clashed, Payne said. But this past season, coach and player drew closer together. Mike was inserted as a starting forward early in the year, removed only by a hamstring injury. After that he shared playing time with five other forwards. Despite being a half-game man, Payne came to appreciate Beatty.

"We get along pretty good now," he says, "though it was hard at first. If he stays at Chico I'd be pretty happy, but if he leaves, I'd feel good that he's doing well with the pros."

Beatty's assistant coach, Lou Sagastume, is the logical choice to become head man if the San Antonio deal works out, Payne says. The problem is that the NASL club wants to sign Sagastume as a player. It's not certain that Lou can handle both jobs.

Payne hopes he can. Sagastume has the affection of most of the players, Payne says. Beatty's loss could be smoothed over easily by the elevation of Sagastume to head coach. If an outsider is imported, Mike warns, the situation could be rocky at Chico.

The team needs no upsets, Payne says, because it is in a difficult situation. Though it is a college division school, Chico is fighting each year for a berth in the university division championships.

"Being in the university division kind of gets to us," Payne says. "We go and play NSF and everybody gets psyched out."

Though the soccer team's future is unclear at present, Payne has more imminent concerns. He may have to skip the upcoming season if a badly damaged knee doesn't heal quickly. Payne tore up the knee in an all-star tryout last February in San Francisco. He underwent surgery that left nothing but pain in the joint.

His own prognosis isn't encouraging for next year. Most likely Payne will red-shirt.

"I'll go to our mountain camp with the team in August, then figure out if I'm going to play," Payne said. "I'll work hard this summer. If I'm good, I'll play. I'm not going to push myself though, because I can sit out a year. It'll depend on how well I can play, because I'm not going to sit on the bench for a year."

"I've been sitting out so long that by next year I won't be as far along as I was as the same time last season. And the kids coming up are getting better all the time."

Payne arrived at Chico three years ago next Fall. It was just about this time in 1972 that he weighed two athletic alternatives. Mike was probably the Bay Area's finest high school soccer player at Livermore. He was also an Alameda County All-Star in football. Given the choice, most youngsters lean toward college football, tradition and prestige being the overriding concerns.

Neutrons to The Netherlands?

If the Livermore Neutrons can raise $600 per man by August 1, they can embark on a month long soccer tour of Holland, coach John Young said yesterday.

Young and his Neutrons returned to the Bay Area in the afternoon after a disappointing weekend in Milwaukee at the Junior National Cup Championships.

They lost their opener to Blau-Weiss Goettsche of New York Saturday, then collapsed in the third place game Sunday, losing to Oak Cliff of Dallas, 4-1.

All four teams at the national championships were invited to Amsterdam by the president of the Holland Football Association.

Young said his players will decide this week whether or not to make the trip. Financing may be the only drawback, the coach indicated. All that is required is the $600 per man for plane fare. Everything else will be covered by the Holland Association.

If the players agree the money can be raised, they will probably accept the challenge, said their coach.

"The kids seem enthusiastic," Young said. "They want to redeem themselves for last weekend. And I'm ready to go right now. It's a once in a lifetime chance."

Teams from all over the world are being asked to the Netherlands in August for a massive month-long exhibition binge. "Essentially it's a tour," Young said. "It will be a friendly thing I don't think any trophies will be awarded."

Oak Cliff, the team that clobbered Livermore for third place, has already accepted the invitation by the Dutch. The Neutrons are expected to reach a decision by Friday.

The team was far off form in Milwaukee last weekend, Young said, losing only its second and third contests of the season. Livermore took the lead in both games, but then sagged.

"I guess we had too much fun before we started to play," Young chuckled. "We played 10 minutes of terrific ball in both games, then everything fell apart."

Dan Payne scored Sunday against Dallas, but then Oak Cliff ripped off three consecutive scores to cinch the contest.

The travel time, and lack of out-of-state experience in competition may have affected the Neutrons, said Young. Also the fact that both New York and Dallas presented strong, physical attacks. "They were very physical, and maybe our guys were a little scared," the coach speculated.

"But we've learned some things from this trip. And from now on we'll be able to get teams better prepared for this kind of competition."

"We've just never played teams from outside our area, and it's a completely different game out there."
